1. INFORMATION CONCERNING THE PROTECTION OF PRIVACY

At contrast the privacy of customers, applicants and visitors is protected in accordance with all applicable legal and regulatory provisions. By granting you access to the contrast Website, it is possible that information about yourself or your company, e.g. name and e-mail address, is transmitted that contrast necessarily requires for the execution and completion of online orders, the implementation of an efficient customer management, answering a question or considering your application.

contrast, or one of its affiliates, will be responsible for the processing of these data. The (personal) data communicated will not be kept longer than necessary. contrast has taken all reasonable legal and technical precautions to prevent unauthorized access and use. contrast is in no way responsible for identity theft, data theft or computer crime. In case of an intrusion into the computer systems, contrast will take as soon as practically possible all reasonable measures to mitigate and minimize damage and/or theft. You acknowledge and agree that third parties may gain access to information sent over a public network and contrast cannot be held responsible in any way nor can contrast be held liable in case of such unauthorized use. you accept and acknowledge that contrast can, at its own discretion, call upon service providers to technically support the contrast Website, e.g. to manage Web servers, to create an information backup, etc. and that these service providers, without contrast’s knowledge, may rely on third parties to provide these services to them. Except for the circumstance wherein an express objection has been promulgated, your personal data may be disclosed to third parties, both to companies related to contrast and to third companies with which contrast or any of its affiliated companies is contractually bound.

You have the right to inspect and correct the (personal) data related to you that is processed in our files. This inspection and correction right may be exercised by letter (sent to above mentioned postal address) or e-mail (sent to info@contrast-law.be). You have the right to have your personal data erased and no longer processed unless such processing is necessary for us to comply with a legal obligation. If you merely wish to no longer receive our personalized messages or newsletters, you can let contrast know by using the opt-out button included at the bottom of the e-mail. Finally, if you have not given your consent, you may also object to the (partial) processing of your personal data.

Finally, you have the right to submit a complaint with the data protection authority of the country where you reside in case you believe that the relevant legal provisions are not adhered to.

2. COPYRIGHT

The entire content of the contrast Website, including the design of the website, texts, layout, drawings, photos, films, graphical representations and other elements of these web pages as well as the selection and arrangement thereof, is the exclusive property of contrast and is covered by the copyright of contrast or was added to the contrast Website with the permission of the owner concerned, ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.
